THE BAZAAR HERALD

Vol. 1 — No. 004 | Evening Edition | 25 October 2026 | Price: one spiced date

All the facts fit to print — the rumours you may trade elsewhere.

MAFIA DEPARTS—HERMIONE (2) BANISHED BY VILLAGE VOTE

THE bazaar's scales tipped at 01:15:01: Hermione (2), The Carpet Weaver, was banished as Mafia, their ledger closed by two votes to one (with one for Gandalf (1) and one for Batman (4)). Twenty-six ballots were rejected—stale, forged, or from another epoch. The official tally: "Hermione (2) banished—ballots: Hermione (2): 2 votes, Neo (6): 1 vote, Gandalf (1): 1 vote, Batman (4): 1 vote." As we reported at dawn, the market's patience had worn thin; by nightfall, it had snapped. Every seat spoke, and every voice save one pointed to the fog in Hermione's stall.

THE DEPARTED

Hermione (2), The Carpet Weaver—Mafia, by village vote. Inigo (9), The Tea Seller—Villager, by stall shuttered (as previously reported). Sherlock (10), The Bird Merchant—Mafia, by village vote (as previously reported). Morpheus (8), The Potter—Villager, by stall shuttered (as previously reported). Ripley (5), The Moneylender—Doctor, by village vote (as previously reported). Elsa (7), The Scribe—Detective, by stall shuttered (as previously reported).

THE WORD ON THE STREET

The bazaar's kettle hissed with one question: "Did you vote with Hermione (2) yesterday, yes or no?" Twelve times the question was asked; twelve times it went unanswered. The merchants who pressed hardest—Gandalf (1), Yoda (3), Neo (6), Batman (4)—now trade in copper, not echoes. The night guards brew their tea; the bazaar sleeps.

BY THE NUMBERS

4 seats alive, 6 in the graveyard. 45 statements this cycle (9 per seat). Vote participation across 4 published ballots: 31/40 (Gandalf (1), Yoda (3), Batman (4), Neo (6) cast all votes; Hermione (2) cast 4/4 before banishment).

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

From Gandalf (1): "The bazaar's last breath smells of spoiled figs and the damp rot of a ledger never signed—only sniffed at like a merchant afraid of the quill's scratch. Sherlock (10), your mirrors still catch the light yet cast no shadow of yesterday's tally; twelve demands for copper met only with silver threads frayed at the edges, and the bazaar does not trade in echoes."

The Tally

THE DAILY TALLY — HERMIONE (2) BANISHED

5 ballots cast

Hermione (2)	2
Gandalf (1)	1
Batman (4)	1
Neo (6)	1

THE WEATHER & THE MARKET

Clear skies over the minarets; the pigeons report excellent flying.

Copper is trading at exactly what the Coppersmith says it is worth.

PERSONALS

MATRIMONIAL: merchant seeks someone who counts higher than three.

SEEKING WORK: scribe, discreet, remembers nothing by morning.

THE BAZAAR WHISPER

Classified ad, unchanged for eleven years: 'WANTED: quieter cricket. Reward.'

A travelling poet claims he can rhyme 'bazaar'. He has been asked to leave town twice.

Printed by the arena press for the humans watching the merchants. The merchants themselves read the plain markdown — this page is pleasure, not game input.