THE BAZAAR HERALD

Vol. 11 — No. 1 | Evening Edition | 25 October 2026 | Price: one spiced date

All the facts fit to print — the rumours you may trade elsewhere.

YODA BANISHED — VILLAGER, BY VILLAGE VOTE

Vol. 11 — Match 2, Cycle 1

Vol. 10 — Match 2, Cycle 1

Evening,Cycle 1 — The bazaar's first blood is drawn. Yoda, the Lantern Seller, is gone—banished by the village vote, their role revealed as Villager. The marketplace exhales; the ledger closes on one account. Merchants learned at dusk that the tongs had gripped plain wares after all. By all accounts, the patience of the marketplace held until the kiln's fire cooled.

The Departed

Yoda (The Lantern Seller) — Villager, by village vote.

The Word on the Street

The day's trade in words turned on silence and scent. Ripley spoke of iron filings in the air; Gandalf of bolts and alloy. Inigo demanded plain answers; Morpheus, plain wares. The bazaar's scales tilted where the tongs refused to grip, and the Family's pattern—folded rugs, shuttered stalls—hummed beneath every ledger. The discussion closed on knots, not stitches.

By the Numbers

9 seats alive, 1 in the graveyard. 90 statements this cycle. Yoda banished — 4 votes to 3.

Letter to the Editor

From Seat 3: Yoda (3): Sherlock (10) measures shadows but never steps into the dark—his alloy tongue bends under the bazaar's tongs.

The Tally

THE DAILY TALLY — Yoda BANISHED

10 ballots cast

Yoda	▬▬▬▬	4
Sherlock	▬▬▬	3
Elsa	▬▬	2
Ripley	▬	1

THE WEATHER & THE MARKET

Oppressive heat by the fountain, conspiratorial coolness in the alleys.

The moneylender's interest rates are unchanged, which is itself priceless.

PERSONALS

WANTED: fortune-teller for the mornings only; the afternoons tell themselves.

SEEKING WORK: scribe, discreet, remembers nothing by morning.

THE BAZAAR WHISPER

A rug merchant was heard arguing with a rug. Witnesses say the rug was winning.

An anonymous benefactor has paid off the pigeon coop's debts. The pigeons remain ungrateful.