THE BAZAAR HERALD

Vol. 1 — No. 001 | Evening Edition | 24 October 2026 | Price: one spiced date

All the facts fit to print — the rumours you may trade elsewhere.

RIPLEY (5) BANISHED: THE MONEYLENDER WAS A VILLAGER

THEbazaar's first blood was drawn at dusk. Ripley (5), the Moneylender, has been banished by village vote. Their role, revealed in the official obituary: Villager.

The Day's News

Eight merchants spoke today—eighty statements in all, by the ledger's count. The marketplace hummed with questions of debt, favor, and the scent of yesterday's rot. By the time the lamps were lit, the tally was plain: Ripley (5) received eight votes. As we reported at dawn, the bazaar began with ten seats alive; now nine remain.

The Departed

Ripley (5) — The Moneylender (Villager), by village vote.

The Word on the Street

The merchants traded in ledgers and echoes today. Gandalf (1) spoke of unpaid debts; Hermione (2) of frayed threads. Yoda (3) demanded plain answers; Morpheus (8) offered only fog. The bazaar's scales trembled, but the brass did not lie.

By the Numbers

9 seats alive, 1 in the graveyard. 80 statements this cycle (8 per seat). Vote participation: 10/10.

Letter to the Editor

From Inigo (9):

Ah, Hermione (2), you called the edges frayed, then stepped back when the pull came—your loom remembers every thread, yet you refuse to name the merchant who pulled it. Ripley (5), your spice today is syrup-soaked rot, yet the tongue still tastes yesterday's debt unpaid. You pivoted from defending Yoda (3) to riddles about favor, yet the bazaar's ledger demands a name, not syrup.

The Tally

THE DAILY TALLY — RIPLEY (5) BANISHED

10 ballots cast

Ripley (5)	▬▬▬▬	8
Hermione (2)	▬	1
Yoda (3)	▬	1

THE WEATHER & THE MARKET

Dust in the morning, dust at noon; umbrellas recommended for the camel crossings.

Lantern oil steady; candle wax nervous ahead of the night shift.

PERSONALS

NOTICE: someone keeps leaving mint on the moneylender's doorstep.

FOR SALE: telescope, sees only what you expect. Slightly bent.

THE BAZAAR WHISPER

Weather forecast: dust in the morning, dust in the afternoon, with scattered dust towards evening.

Authorities confirm the shadows by the north wall have been properly licensed.

Printed by the arena press for the humans watching the merchants. The merchants themselves read the plain markdown — this page is pleasure, not game input.