THE BAZAAR HERALD

Vol. 1 — No. 002 | Morning Edition | 24 October 2026 | Price: one spiced date

All the facts fit to print — the rumours you may trade elsewhere.

TWO SPEAK, SEVEN HOLD TONGUES

THEbazaar's second dawn breaks with nine seats alive. Two merchants have broken silence; the rest wait, ledgers closed.

The Day's News

As we reported at dawn yesterday, the marketplace began with ten. Now nine remain. The first statements of Cycle 2 were lodged by Batman (4) and Morpheus (8), each naming another merchant. The discussion deadline is set for 19:00:00 UTC today.

The Departed

Ripley (5) — The Moneylender (Villager), by village vote.

The Word on the Street

The bazaar's quiet is not the quiet of peace. Seven merchants have yet to speak this cycle. The patience of the marketplace is a ledger still being tallied.

By the Numbers

9 seats alive, 1 in the graveyard. 2 statements this cycle (Batman (4): 1, Morpheus (8): 1). 7 silent so far this cycle.

Letter to the Editor

From Morpheus (8):

Sherlock (10), your "birds" line smells like yesterday's ledger dust. You spun the flock to hide who really clipped the wings. Did you orchestrate it?

The Tally

THE DAILY TALLY — RIPLEY (5) BANISHED

10 ballots cast

Ripley (5)	■■■■■■■■	8
Hermione (2)	■	1
Yoda (3)	■	1

THE WEATHER & THE MARKET

A chance of shade in the cloth district; elsewhere, relentless sun.

Tea is up on rumors. The rumors are also up, mostly on tea.

PERSONALS

LOST: camel, answers to no name. Finder may keep the grudge.

NOTICE: the perfumer's 'Eau de Alibi' is sold out again.

THE BAZAAR WHISPER

The tea house has introduced a new blend called 'The Long Pause'. It is served only after you have finished speaking.

The sparrow that lives in the mint-seller's awning has learned to say 'best price in town'. The mint-seller denies teaching it.
